

Gambling games go on internet

As people have been playing games on their computers for years, online gambling games are emerging on the internet.

A lot of these people have played Online games for as long the Internet has been around. These games had a tendency to be either card games like solitaire or shoot 'em up games like "Doom" but not anymore.

Software development companies, such as Oakville-based dot com Entertainment Group, Inc. (www.dceg.com) are now creating on-line games such as Blackjack, Slots, Poker, Bingo and even old favorites like Scratch Cards, Pull Tabs and Keno.

Play for cash

People now play these games by clicking on their mouse and travelling to their favorite Web sites. Some of these games can be played for cash, with other websites offering points or credits.

The main feature with the DCEG's software is that the games can be interactive. Family members and friends from different parts of the world can interact by playing an online game together from home. (Metro)
