A 3D town Shafik Jiwani, vice-president of Orion Technology, poses in front of the projection of a three-dimensional map of the town of Markham, the first in Canada. The so-called 3D CityMap, developed by the company, is created by skilled drafters from images of the area's geography, which are taken from a helicopter. A sample of the Geographic Information Systems (GIS) technology is on the town's Web site (www.engagemarkham.com).
